THE TARIFF BILL.

President Cleveland. Chairman Wilson and Senator Hill

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.

EDITOR ADVOCATE:

The tariff bill. Oh! where is it? Mr. Hill says "a theory as well as a condition confronts us" at present. The Conference Committee on the tariff bill has made its report, and the conferees agreed to disagree, and Mr. Hill in opening his speech on the report made use of the above language. The President has written a letter to Chairman Wilson denouncing the Senate job as an utter failure on the part of the Senate to redeem the pledges of the Democratic party. Mr. Hill is defending the President's position on free raw materials. Mr. Wilson said in concluding his speech yesterday: "If it be true that the great American sugar trust has grown so strong and so powerful that it says that no tariff bill can pass the American Congress, in which its privileges are not adequately guarded, if I say, that be true, I hope this House will never cohesively adjourn. I hope whatever the fate of the general tariff bill, that this House will not consent to an adjournment until it has passed a single bill putting refined sugar on the free list."

Chairman Wilson has proven himself a true and patriotic Democrat; a Democrat for principle and not for what there is in it. What we need to-day is a few more Wilsons and the Democratic party will stand forever. It is thought that the House will never agree to an adjournment until the bill is disposed of, and according to the House's idea of the matter.

This state of affairs convinces me more thoroughly that the Senate should either be abolished or that Senators should be elected by the people. When it comes to a few "incorporated," "trust" Senators waiting to repudiate and destroy the opinions, the veins and the grand principles of the great Democratic party, it is time to call a halt. The House of Representatives must stand firm, and get what the people want or nothing. The Wilson Bill as it was passed by the Senate, is simply the McKinley Bill with Wilson's name at its head.

After passing a number of bills from the Judiciary Committee to-day, the House resumed the consideration of the Tucker joint resolutions providing for the election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people.

About the first thing one hears in the morning and the last thing at night in Washington, is, "Ain't it hot?" This seems to me to be the hottest place in the world.

The Public Printer is still cutting off heads and the employees are petitioning Congress for a new building, a thing badly needed. If an accident should occur in the printing office, there can be no fault laid to anyone except Congress herself.

There are great preparations being made here for the entertainment of the R. O. F. Vice President Stevenson has promised to deliver the address of welcome. The Knights will occupy a royal welcome and have a grand time while here. Washington being the nation's city, the sights to be seen are well worth a visit, and the P. Encampment will afford an opportunity of seeing all as a little cost. There will be a grand reception at Convention Hall, which seats 6,000 people. This is where the Knights will be received by the next President of the United States.

For a Song.

Middlesboro, Ky., July 21.—The nominal Assets of the Coal and Iron Bank, consisting of personal notes, stocks of various Middlesboro corporations and city warrants put up as collateral, amounting to $404,000, were sold to-day by Receiver D. E. McDowell at public auction for $1,644.

Mother and Daughter.

Mrs. Virginia Botts, one of the old citizens of Mt. Sterling in length of residence as well as in years of life, died on Tuesday morning last at her home in this city. For many years she has been a complete invalid and a confirmed recluse for many more. She would have reached the ripe age of ninety years had she lived till the 10th day of November next, and seventy-five of those years has been spent as a resident of Mt. Sterling. Nearly seventy years ago she joined the Christian Church under the preaching of the distinguished Alexander Campbell. Mrs. Botts had a strong hold on the friendship of our older citizens who knew her when she was a woman in the prime of life and in the discharge of its active duties.

Mrs. Botts passed away about 10 a. m., and as the wives were bearing the news of her demise to her daughter, Mrs. John B. Wilson, of Shelby county, the same wife was charged with another message to the family here that Mrs. Wilson herself had gone to join the mother in the other land. Barely a half hour intervened between the demise of mother and daughter. The remains of Mrs. Wilson were brought here and the unusual scene was witnessed of mother and daughter being laid away together in our city of the dead. The burial service of the two was held at the home of Mr. Botts in this city on Wednesday afternoon.

A Tape Worm Suit.

A very peculiar suit has been filed in the Bullitt Quarterly Court. Dr. Kaniser, a prominent physician of Smithville, swore out a writ of delivery against Dock Miller, of color, for the recovery of a tape worm which the doctor claims he took from Miller's boy several weeks ago and which Miller promised to deliver to him in consideration of the doctor's services.

Recently the doctor called upon Miller for the worm, which was preserved in alcohol, and the darkey refused to give it up, claiming the boy would die if the worm went out of the family. The doctor then demanded the money for his services attending the boy, but Dock didn't have the money and turned the doctor away with insulting words. The doctor is very wrothy and determined to collect his fee.

Conferees Threatened.

The conferees of the Tariff Bill are not only required to meet dissensions in their own ranks, but it appears are also compelled to receive threats of personal violence from persons on the outside. These threats have so far come by mail, and are generally anonymous.

Senator Jones says he has received at least a dozen letters of this character, of which the following is a fair specimen: "New York, July 19.—To the Congressional Committee on the Tariff Bill: If you pass the bill with the income tax don't forget to order your coffins. You will need them, all of you, as soon as you in Washington. A Democrat. So help you God."

Louis Stevenson, the Vice President's son, was greatly pleased by his appointment to the pay corps of the navy, had his uniform made, and was about to file his bond, but, meanwhile, married and went to Europe on his wedding trip and then resigned. No reason has been assigned for this change of mind, but it appears to be chiefly a rich father-in-law.—Louisville Post.

The A. R. U. leaders request that no American citizen who believes in equal justice to all men, shall patronize the Pullman Company by riding in their cars, until they do justice to their employees. Debs expresses his faith in the American people, and says all legal means will be resorted to until the grievances have been righted. He claims his organization to be growing at the rate of 600 per day.

STONE'S BILL.

It Provides For the Inspection of Immigrants on the Other Side.

Washington, July 21.—The Congressional authorities on immigration laws are much exercised over the passage of Representative William A. Stone's Immigration Bill in the House yesterday, while most of the members were watching the exciting scene in the Senate. The Stone bill is far-reaching in its effect on the system of inspecting immigrants, as the entire inspection is transferred to foreign ports and placed in the hands of United States Consuls, instead of waiting for inspection at New York and other ports when the immigrant arrives in this country. "I expect to see the bill taken up by the Senate at an early day and passed," said Mr. Stone, "and already several Senators who recognize the evils of immigration have signified their purpose to urge it to speedy passage. The present immigration system has proved a failure. Immigrants keep coming without reference to restrictions. The system is wrong, as it leaves the immigrant to furnish all the information on which he is to be received or rejected."

Mr. Stone was asked if the removal of the system to foreign ports would not necessitate a large force of inspectors or else give the United States Consuls additional work, entitling them to additional pay. "No," said he. "Efforts have been made to so change the laws as to let the Treasury Department appoint the foreign inspectors. Such a change would necessitate the creation of a large force of officers; but as the bill stands the United States Consuls, who are not overburdened with work, will have charge of the inspection."

It is understood that Senators Davis, Chandler and Quay will particularly interest themselves in the Stone bill with a view to its early adoption.

Looks Like Paynter.

Greenup, Ky., July 21.—At the county conventions to-day Congressman Paynter carried Greenup, Carter, Fleming, Mason, Nicholas, Robertson, Bracken, Harrison, Rowan and Lewis, giving him within four votes of the nomination.

A Young Congressman.

If J. M. Kendall, Democratic congressional nominee in the Tenth Kentucky District, is anything like the Courier Journal's picture of him, he ought to be a Freshman in a first-class high school. But "he made a strong speech in accepting the nomination."—Selma (Ala.) Times.

Dr. John L. Brown, of Jeffersonville, was married on last Wednesday to Miss Prudence Catherine Bowling, Rev. J. P. Ross, of the Methodist Church, Canagoga, officiating, at 6.30. They went to Frankfort and after a few days sojourn will return to Jeffersonville and begin housekeeping.

Let Clark Settle It.

In spite of the fact that the Campion Convention endorsed Judge W. M. Beckner for the short term in Congress to succeed the Hon. M. C. Lisle, he will have to fight inside the party for the place. Mr. D. C. Lisle, brother of the deceased Congressman, has followed up his announcement of candidacy by commencing an active fight for the place. His claims are purely sentimental, and that sort of thing goes a long way in that district, and it may be that he will be a formidable factor in the race.

It seems a pity that the Democrats of the district at this particular time when harmony is so much desired should be called on to settle a contest for such a very short term, and it has been suggested that Judge Beckner and Mr. Lisle leave the settlement of the matter to the voters of Clark county where they both reside. It is said the two gentlemen concerned have practically agreed to this, and it seems to be the sensible way out of it.—Courier Journal.

Has Some Bigness His Ownself.

Mr. Vest indignantly resents Mr. Cleveland's action in urging Congress to do something toward redeeming the pledges of the Democratic platform. "Mr. Cleveland is a big man," exclaims Mr. Vest, "but the Democratic party is greater than any one man." It is not, however, according to Mr. Vest's Tariff Bill, as great as three or four men whom Mr. Vest happens to know in the Senate.—Courier Journal.

The Fifth Avenue Hotel, one of the best in the city of Louisville, has changed hands, and while its prices will remain the same, it will if possible be placed on a higher grade than of the past. The Fifth Avenue under its former management has pleased its guests, but they ever so fastidious, and now this hotel has an enviable reputation the country over. Under the new management Mr. Johnson will not only aim to maintain its high standing, but to make it more attractive and pleasant. The Fifth Avenue has few equals, even with hotels which charge twice the amount, and under the present management it will continue to grow in popularity.

That was a glorious rain that fell yesterday. Never did rain come more timely or in a manner to do more good. It fell just fast enough to be drank up by the thirsty ground, and as it reached the roots of the grass, corn and tobacco it sent new life into the parched vegetation and put a broad grin upon every farmer's face.

Judge Seeds, of the New Mexico Federal Court, upholds the action of the Atchison receivers in refusing to re-employ strikers and orders that no one guilty of contempt shall in any manner be re-employed. This latter especially affects fourteen strikers whom he has just sentenced to terms varying from fifteen to fifty days in jail.

It is said that the pastors of three churches in Catlettsburg have decided not to preach more than half an hour, and to call upon any member caught napping during service to lead in prayer.

The preacher who cannot keep his congregation awake for half an hour, even these sultry summer days, deserves to have them go to sleep on him.

Robbed Near Winchester.

Mr. Wm. Spencer, a well known and popular farmer of this county, on Monday night of last week, reached Winchester on his way home from a trip to the west. His train missed connection, and he hired a horse and buggy, with a negro driver, to come home.

When some distance this side of Winchester, the negro drew a razor on Mr. Spencer and demanded his money. After getting what money Mr. Spencer had with him, some $33, the brute threatened to kill the old gentleman. A fortunate movement of the horse threw the scoundrel to the ground, and Mr. Spencer drove rapidly toward home. Mr. Spencer sent to town for his son-in-law, Mr. Chas. T. Wilson, and together they returned to Winchester, and found little difficulty in locating the negro, who proved to be Grant Goff, an ex convict. Mr. Spencer secured $25.35 of his money and had the satisfaction of seeing his assailant lodged in jail.

Ah There Senators!

The Senate's reception of the President's letter was what might have been expected. The small boy can never understand the justice of a spanking. The Senate is out of sorts. It knows it has brought itself into contempt. It knows it has dishonored the pledges of the Democratic party. It has managed to quiet its own conscience by specious arguments, but it has had a restless fear that there is going to be trouble to make these arguments stand with the people. They are not too far gone to recognize in the President's letter the opinion that the people entertain of them—that they have been driving the Democracy toward "party purity and party dishonor."—Courier Journal.

The marriage history of George K. Gates, of New York who figures in a divorce case which is to come up, will be as follows:

1865. Married Annie Dudley; quarrelled and separated.

1869. Told by his wife's father that Mrs. Dudley was dead.

1890. Married Alice Lipman, who tried to get hold of his property, and failing to have to travel to poison him.

1892. Mrs. Gates No. 2 went to live with the boarder, Andrew Wood.

1893. Mrs. Gates No. 1, who had not died, sued for divorce, charging Gates with committing adultery with Mrs. Gates No. 2.

1892. Mrs. Gates No. 2 sued for divorce, charging Gates with carnal knowledge of Servant girl Maggie Monahan.

It is a mistake to think that women are less intellectual than men. The brain that can comprehend and carry the fancy work directions given in the fashion papers is surely equal to any question of state, no matter how momentous it may be.

A school district in Grant county, Kansas, contains only one family. The father, mother and eldest son have elected themselves trustees, and carry the eldest daughter, at $35 a month, to teach the younger children.

THE ADVOCATE.

The President has approved the bill for the admission of Utah.

It is computed that there are in the United States 48,900 blind and 33,900 deaf mutes.

The Bailey bill providing for a voluntary bankruptcy law has been passed by the House.

An agricultural laborer in India is supposed to receive five cents a day, but in general his wages are not so large.

A prominent breeder of hogs, who has kept a careful record, says that for ten years he has been able to sell stock at an average price of $5.05 per 100 pounds.—Farmers Home Journal.

London has an annual average rainfall of but twenty-five inches, Paris twenty-two inches, Manchester thirty-six inches and Edinburgh thirty-eight inches, while Boston shows forty-six inches, New York forty-five inches, Philadelphia forty-one inches and Chicago thirty-six inches.

Senator George, of Mississippi, has introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution providing that eight hours shall constitute a day's work for persons engaged in manual labor, and that persons lawfully so engaged "shall not be unlawfully hindered or obstructed."

The sub-committee of the Suffrage Committee of the New York Constitutional Convention has decided to report to the full committee adversely all propositions tending toward female suffrage except that allowing the question to be submitted to a vote of the electors of the State at the next general election.

Patrick O'Hearn was shot and perhaps fatally injured by an unknown negro in the yards of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Southern Railroad, Louisville. The negro was about to be run over when O'Hearn jerked him from the track. O'Hearn is a bricklayer, and the negro taking the kindness for an assent, drew his pistol and fired the shot which may prove fatal.

At Philadelphia was enacted another of those scenes which have become so frequent of late years upon the base ball field, and which have thrown so much discredit upon this manly sport. In a riot subsequent to the game one of the Boston players had his cheek broken by one of the mob, and a further attack upon the visiting team was only prevented with difficulty.

George Loomis, of Lexington, the Greek, who a few days ago criminally assaulted fifteen-year-old Maggie Davis, has been held over to the Circuit Court for trial. The evidence shows the outrage to have been a shameful assault upon the little girl. Loomis was placed in jail in default of $1,500 bail. He recently married Miss Nannie Kimball, who now wants a divorce, on the ground that she was married to Loomis while asleep in bed and that he did not have her consent.

William Spencer, of this county, who was returning from Texas and missed connection at Winchester, hired a horse and buggy and employed a negro, Grant Goff, to drive him out home and take back the conveyance. They had gone only a short distance, when the negro drew a razor and demanded Mr. Spencer's money, which he got. He then attempted to murder Mr. Spencer, but Mr. Spencer got away. Goff has been captured. He has served a year in the penitentiary in this State and also one in the penitentiary in Ohio. He will go to the pen again, but the scaffold would be better for such a murderous villain.

At a meeting of the Democratic Congressional Committee of the Fifth (Louisville) District held on Wednesday last, says the Courier Journal, Chairman Long showed, by figures copied from the registration books, that there had been either a wholesale conversation of Republicans from the error of their ways or a very large number of members of the bread-and-butter brigade had registered themselves as Democrats with the idea of selling their suffrage. While Mr. Harrison got 11,579 votes at the election of 1892 and Mr. Cleveland had 17,686, yet the registration of 1893 showed a total of 25,063 registered as Democrats and but 8,700 Republicans. There has been no change in that woeful appearance are nightly deceptive. The committee will however, endeavor to provide against fraud.

JUDGE COOLEY ON THE STRIKE

The Eminent Jurist Highly Commends the President's Course. From a Constitutional Standpoint.

In view of criticisms that have been uttered in certain quarters on the legality of the course pursued by President Cleveland in using Federal troops, notably in Chicago, not to preserve the peace, but to execute the decrees of the Federal judiciary and keep in operation the provisions of the interstate commerce law, the following letter from one of the most able exponents of the Constitution in the land has peculiar application:

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 15, 1894.—
President Grover Cleveland—Honored Sir: Now that the great strike in which your official intervention became so necessary, has been clearly shown to be a failure, I beg to be allowed to express my unqualified satisfaction with every step you have taken in vindication of the national authority and with the restoration of law and order which has followed or is now in progress. The caution and deliberation with which you have proceeded are, I think worthy like the accompanying firmness, of highest praise, and I am specially gratified that a great and valuable lesson in constitutional construction has been settled for all time with remarkable little bloodshed. You and the Attorney General also have won the gratitude of the country, not for this generation only, but for all time, and that God may bless you for it is the sincere prayer of your obedient servant,
THOMAS M. COOLEY.

Curiosities of Tree-Growth.

Some remarkable cases of natural grafting have been observed lately in America. One is that of a sugar maple which has coalesced with a white pine in a Woodland in Wisconsin. The trunks keep apart for three and a half feet above the ground, where they unite into a single stem. It is supposed that friction in the wind or the rubbing of a deer has frayed the green bark when the trees were saplings and caused them to adhere. Other cases of white pines growing together have been reported, in one of them as many as four trunks uniting at a sufficient height above the ground to allow persons to walk under. A veritable "bow-knot" formed by the branches of a tree has also been described; and in the heart of two trunks—one of burr oak, the other of white wood, sawed up for lumber—the antlers of deer were found imbedded. It is supposed that the animals had caught the tips of their horns in the green wood and broken them off. In the heart of another trunk of hickory wood a horse-shoe was found; but how it got there is quite a mystery.—Cassell's Magazine.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, who settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use and after taking ten bottles, found herself sound and well, now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was. Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at W. S. Lloyd's druggists, large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

A Big Contract Offered Uncle Sam.

It has not been long since a gentleman and lady of Louisville had a fight and smashed a hack to pieces in attempting to settle the question as to whether modern etiquette requires the gentleman or the lady to first alight from a carriage. Now two gentlemen of Louisville have had a fight in attempting to settle the question as to which of two gentlemen, joint owners of a bottle of whiskey, should take the first drink from the bottle. When the United States Government gets through settling strikes and rebellions in Illinois and California, perhaps it will send its troops to Louisville and settle one for all the etiquette of the country.—Courier Journal.

Don't forget the great game of baseball this afternoon.

Zoo Snakes Under Treatment for Elongated Ills.

Who ever heard of a snake with a sore throat? The probabilities are that most people would hesitate in guessing where a snake's throat ends and the rest of his anatomy begins. But snakes in captivity do have sore throats, and if due precautions are not taken to cure the trouble it spreads and destroys the jaw bones and fangs. The treatment of a snake's sore throat is not unattended with difficulty. The difficulty is as long as the snake.

Supt. Stephen of the Zoo knows more about the care of animals, snakes and birds than any other man in Cincinnati does. He can tell at a glance whether any of his Zoo charges are well, merely under the weather, off their feed or seriously ill. In the last few days he had noticed that the snakes had some months and throats and could not eat their regular rations of live pigeons and rats. These delicacies are on the regular bill of fare at the snake cage, and it was here that kept out of the Zoo. It was, by the way, getting scarce at there.

With the superintendent to see to it, and he at once made preparations to treat the snakes. The keepers helped, armed with brooms. The brush part of a broom isn't a bad thing over a snake's head until he can be caught just right, and his mouth forced open. There are not many people who would care to foot that way with boas and pythons. There is nothing like knowing how, and the Zoo people know how.

The larger snakes were taken out and their mouths and throats gargled. They were then, one by one, popped into common meal sacks, tied up and laid away. The operation was very skillfully performed, until it came the turn of Mr. African Python. This terror has his own ideas upon the subject of medical treatment, and represented the doctoring. Billy, the keeper, who was helping the superintendent endeavored to hold the aft half of the snake quiet while Mr. Stephen doctoring a few yards further up.

A python is pretty strong and in spite of Billy's struggle the creature wrapped his arm in his hold, and it was with difficulty unwound by the other men before any damage was done. The snake succeeded in darting its dangerous fangs close to the superintendent's hands three times before the throat had been treated. After that the python was tied up like the others and stored away.

Three snakes were covered with bags upon the tree trunk in the cage, and at once settled down to repose. When covered with these bags the snakes imagine themselves in the tree hollows and lie dormant until uncovered or very hungry, when they become restless and wriggling. After the keepers had hung up the bags of snakes they cleaned out the cage and painted the floor.—Cincinnati Tribune

Mr. Debs, who has suddenly become so famous, is said to be in danger of a nervous break-down. Something over two years ago he was suffering greatly from the effects of drink, and he was sent to be treated by Dr. T. S. Robertson. The treatment was remarkably successful, but the effects of hard drinking could not be entirely removed. During the recent labor troubles, Dr. Robertson sent Debs the following telegram: "As your friend and physician, I implore you to stop where you are. The condition of your nervous system and the great strain upon it make you irresponsible for your own orders. Yours in friendship, T. S. R."

Dr. Robertson says: "When Debs came to me he was a physical and mental wreck. He had stepped himself in drink. But had been a brilliant young man, and I used every effort to save him, and succeeded, but no man who has been shattered as he has, can endure such a strain as he is now putting upon himself. I don't know whether he is sound mentally or not." These and other utterances by Dr. Robertson, concerning Mr. Debs, are given in the New York Evening Post, and they throw a good deal of light upon the sayings and doings of Mr. Debs. They will also affect public sentiment in regard to him.—Ex.

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quick nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Knickerbocker, Canover, Ark.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Dr. William Van Antwerp made his many friends glad last week by his appearance on the streets and about his business place. The doctor has had a serious spell of sickness and his friends were very solicitous concerning him.

The Kentucky Training School for Boys will begin its next session September 3, 1894, and never in the history of this school has the principal been so encouraged. Letters are coming in from far and near and the outlook is fine for a large school. Every preparation has been made. This is a strictly a training school conducted on the most advanced practical methods. Write to Major C. W. Fowler for catalogues.

On yesterday we received a telegram from Mr. Tall, of Oregon, who is very desirous of locating here to establish a female college. He is highly recommended as an educator and we would be anxious to see him come but do not think it wise to so advise at this time. Mr. Tall is a married man, and his wife is also a professional teacher. Should they come they would expect in a very short time to have school buildings of the most modern design.

Harris Institute, under the management of Major C. W. Fowler and Prof. J. H. Caldwell, is meeting with very flattering prospects, and the school will more than likely open September 3d with the rise of 100 pupils. Prof. Caldwell and family arrived in the city from Mississippi last week, and we find him a genial, refined gentleman of plenty of snap, and this, coupled with a strong, native mind carefully trained and equipped for his chosen life-work, makes him the one man in the city. The Boarding department of Harris Institute will be under the supervision of Mrs. Caldwell.

On Wednesday afternoon some negro boys became engaged in a quarrel in Smithville, a negro suburb. Horse and cattle thieves are in the neighborhood. About four weeks ago Oldham Green lost a valuable mare, taken out of the pasture of his father, and two weeks later H. K. Green lost four head of fat cattle. Diligent search has been made for horse and cattle, but no trace of either. It is hoped that the guilty parties may be caught. It is thought that there is a band of them in the neighborhood.

Mr. Wm. White, one of the most upright and sterlingly honest men of the county, died at his home near Somerset on Wednesday. Mr. White was one of those quiet men who exert an influence for good, God and truth by their unobtrusive lives. One of the best and most prosperous farmers in the county, he interfered with no man's business and looked strictly after his own. He enjoyed the respect and good will of all who knew him. For months past he has been in failing health, and was compelled to a great extent to relinquish an active interest in business matters. A large number of his neighbors and friends followed him to his beautiful cemetery, where they were laid to rest, on Thursday afternoon.

The handsome new edifice erected at the corner of Walnut and Short streets, Lexington, and to be known as the Central Christian church, was dedicated on Sunday. The building has a seating capacity of 1,000, and can be made to accommodate a congregation of 1,400.

Take Notice, Ye Hunters.

Some of our hunters may not know when they are laying themselves liable, and for their benefit we copy a few sections of chapter 23, of the General Statutes:

Section 6: "No person shall catch, kill, or pursue with such intent, or have the same in possession after it has been caught or killed, any quail, partridge or pheasant between the first day of January and the 15th day of November in each year."

Section 7: "No person shall catch, kill, or pursue with such intent, or have in possession after it has been caught or killed, any dove between the first day of February and the first day of August in each year."

Section 9: "No person shall at any time catch, kill or take by means of net, trap, box or snare, or have in possession after having so caught, killed or taken, any quail, partridge or pheasant."

Section 11: "Any person guilty of violating any of the provisions or either of the preceding sections shall be fined for each offense not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars."

Many Republicans who held the position as gaugers in the internal revenue service under Harrison's Administration have been brought into service again by Internal Revenue Commissioner Wiley. The fact that so much whiskey is being taken out of bond requires an unusually large number of gaugers just at this time, and in order to facilitate matters the old gaugers are reapportioned because of their experience. The positions are only temporary, but pay well—$5 a day and expenses.

Louisville Tobacco Market.

Sales on our market for the week just closed, amount to 2,614 hhds., with receipts for the same period, 1,535 hhds. Sales on our market since January 1st, amount to 99,243 hhds.

Sales of the crop of 1893 on our market to this date amount 99,385 hhds.

During the week we have had an uninterrupted firm market for burley tobacco, with the good to fine grades of leaf rather higher than at any time during the year. We are again having a spell of local rains.

In many localities the rain fall has been abundant but at this writing it is impossible to tell how much of the tobacco belt has been covered by the recent rains.

THAT TIRED FEELING.

I'm tired of infant prodigies,
Now, tell me, are not you?
I'm tired of weather prophecies
That always miss the mark;
I'm tired of buying goods marked down,
Way down from cost before;
Of building fine-looking stores
That double value cost.

I'm tired of ladies who remain
Unmoved from side chairs;
Of maids who sing, yet plead and feign
To have indeed no song;
Of girls who never gossip, say,
So classical are they;
Of youth, just home from college high,
Who know it all—his way.

I'm tired (oh, have you never heard?)
Of folks running me;
Their shoes are one size larger than
They really ought to be;
Of would-be poets seeking fame
By harping "gentle breeze,"
Upon the fact stands first the same
Attached to this crude fable.

I'm tired of social belles twirl
By girls whose souls are void;
Of seeing fluffy, golden curls
That pervade doctored
Of clerks who know before I ask
The very thing I need;
Of would-be friends who "breathe the mark"
Of bluntness hurt the taunt.

I'm tired of fatal accident
By gun unloaded quiet;
Of tonic "surely heaven sent,"
That puts all life to flight;
Of drivers and of passengers,
Who never look my way;
Of him who borrows just a ten
And quite forgets to pay.

I'm tired of hearing old folks prate
Over days' perfection freight;
Of never bending legs or arms,
Of traffic lights brought;
Of all these things that I'm sure
I'm tired as I'm sure
And as all farmers are a horse
I know yet to be sure.

A TRICYCLE FOR TWO

A street organ was playing "A Bicycle Made For Two," and as we listened sadly and wondered how long England would be permitted to be the refuge of anarchists and organ grinders the colonel remarked to no one in particular: "A bicycle made for two may do well enough in this country, but if you Britishers had ever seen Professor Van Wagener's tricycle made for two you would never think of singing about any kind of bicycle."

"I think I was telling you the other day," continued the colonel, "about Professor Van Wagener, the great electrical sharp, who used to live next door to me in New Berlinopolis. A mighty clever man he was in many other directions than that of electricity. He was an inventor of something. I have known that man to get up at 4 o'clock on a winter's morning and invent straight along till noon. Show him a piece of machinery, I don't care what it might be, and he would instantly go to work to improve it."

"I had a reaping machine in my field, and one day the horse happened to see it. Nothing would satisfy him but to put an attachment to that machine so that it would gather the straw into bundles and tie them neatly around the bundle with ropes which were to be twisted out of straw with a second attachment to the machine. He worked at that idea for several months until he got it to suit him. Then he built a brand new machine with his two attachments and took it into my field to exhibit it. He was so proud of it that he sent out written invitations to all his acquaintances to come and see it, and he told me that this time he had made an invention that was going to make his fortune and give him a reputation that would be over any other man's, except perhaps George Washington's."

"The machine was a big, clumsy-looking affair and it ran on a horse that had a sort of stall in the middle of it, where he couldn't play any tricks and where the machine couldn't play any tricks on him. The professor had his wife with him and his wife's cousin, who was a very pretty girl, though I don't believe Van Wagener ever noticed that any thing was pretty unless it was some sort of scientific apparatus. The horse was started up, and the machine began to reep and to tie up bundles of straw and was so perfectly satisfied to speak. The machine kept on its way, seeking for more citizens and more straw, until some man had some sense to stop the horse and so put an end to the performance. There is no way of doubt that it was a talented machine, but when the leading citizens had been set free they seemed very much prejudiced against it. Some of them were for killing the professor, and some of them were for killing the horse, but they finally compromised and arranged that the professor, by smashing the machine into scrap iron and informing the professor that if he ever calculated to build another one he had better dig his grave deep and then to the office of it. I can't say that I blame them very much, for when a man is violently tied up with some other man whom he doesn't particularly like or with some other man's wife, knowing all the time that the woman is looking at him with her eyes and her hands, and that she is as good as a general rule to argue a matter until after he has got done shooting, it stands to reason that he won't feel particularly friendly to the machine that has done the tying. I never heard any more about that machine from the professor, and it's my belief that when his wife got him home she let him know that he couldn't be tied up in the same bundle with a good looking cousin without inviting the just indignation of a virtuous and devoted wife.

"Another fine the professor was taking a drive with me in my buggy, and it struck him as a bright idea that the bit and reins ought to be suspended by electricity. So he got to work and invents a new way of driving a horse by pressing buttons instead of pulling on the reins. He had wires run from the seat of his wagon to different parts of the horse. You pressed one button, and the horse got a shock on the right side of his face that made him turn to the left. You pressed another button, and a shock on the left cheek turned him to the right. A wire connecting with a tail was used to stir him up instead of a whip, and a strong current sent into his fore legs was expected to make him stop dead still whenever it was turned on. All these currents came from a battery under the seat of the wagon, and the buttons that turned them on were let into the seat on either side of the driver.

"Van Wagener told me his wife out to drive in this new style of wagon as soon as he got it perfected, and to all appearances it worked very well. He stopped in front of Dr. Smith's drug store, where was a minor leading drug store at the time, though afterward the proprietor was crusaded by the Women's Christian Temperance union, who snatched all his whiskey bottles and knocked out the heads of his whiskey barrels and left nothing in his establishment except a few medicine bottles and a little perfume. Well, as I was saying, the professor stopped in front of the drugstore, and Mrs. Van Wagener climbed down and bought some mustard plasters or something of the kind, and then she climbed into the wagon again. She was a middling heavy woman, which was a little strange, considering how strict she was in matters of morality and religion, for your strict woman is nearly always more or less bony, and she sat down on the seat with considerable force and directly on the top of about half the electric buttons, she having forgotten all about them. The horse couldn't quite understand the signals, but when he felt a current sent into his right side and another in his left cheek, he saw that as a matter of self respect he ought to kick that wagon to pieces, and accordingly he started to do it. The professor yelled to him to whoa, and he turned on all his electricity at once, hoping to shock the horse into some sort of sanity, but it didn't work. The horse just kicked the whole front of the wagon into smithereens, and when he struck the battery and split the axle over his legs he remembered that he had a great engagement in the next county, and he started to keep it at a pace of about 30 miles an hour. It didn't make much matter to the professor and his wife, who had scattered all over the neighborhood when the horse's heels first struck the seat, but when they came to and Smith had plastered them up with brown paper and arnica Van Wagener remarked that in his opinion horses were played out, and that in this age electricity ought to be made to take the place of such a grossly unscientific animal."

The colonel paused and pulled his hat down over his eyes, as was his custom when he had finished speaking and desired to smoke in silence. He was reminded by Thompson that, however interesting his recollections of Professor Van Wagener might be, they had not yet included the promised account of the tricycle made for two.

"Bey your pardon, gentlemen," said the colonel. "I clean forgot about that. The tricycle, when I get to remember the details of the invention, then I generally forget the particular one I started out to tell about. It's the other way with my horse, I've started out half a dozen times to go to the Tower, and I strike so many things that interest me that I have never yet got there. Take your cigar shape, for instance. Why, they are 50 years behind the age, and when I go into one I get talking with the proprietor and trying to show him the figures of his ways, till first I know it's too late to get away there."

"But about this hyper tricycle. When bicycles and tricycles came to New Berlinopolis the professor had been mightily interested in them. Not that he admired them, but because, as he said, they were unscientific. He exerted all his might to get a clear idea of figures that it took more than to drive a bicycle a mile than with a man's own legs. There was no getting around it. The figure proved that a man weighing 140 pounds and driving an ordinary bicycle at the rate of 10 miles an hour consumed, say, 800 foot pounds of energy—if anybody knows what that means, and I don't much believe anybody does. Well, the same man would run a mile with the consumption of only 400 pounds, leaving a plus of 100 pounds for the benefit of the poor. If these young fellows that I see on bicycles had any sense," said Van Wagener, "they would drive their machines by electricity and avoid the awful consumption of energy." No sooner had this idea struck him than he proceeded to invent an electric engine for bicycles, and in the course of the summer he had his invention worked out to his own satisfaction.

"The engine and storage battery took up a good deal of space, so the wise professor, instead of applying it to a bicycle, had built a big tricycle, with seats for two, and fitted his engine to that. He calculated that it would drive the machine for 12 hours at a speed of 15 miles on a level, and that it would carry two persons weighing in the aggregate 800 pounds with perfect ease. When the machine was finished, the professor wheeled it out of the yard and down to turn in the road where Mrs. Wagener couldn't see him and make ready for a start. You see, his wife was prejudiced against his inventions and always said that he should never try experiments with new inventions so long as she could prevent it. Just as the professor was climbing aboard the tricycle, Widow Dumfries came along, and being young and full of spirits, besides being a mighty sociable sort of woman, she told Van Wagener that it looked mighty selfish for him to start out alone, and that if he wanted to be real accommodating he would give her a little ride on his machine. The professor never could say no, except to another scientific person, and so he told Mrs. Dumfries to get into the front seat and he would take her down to her house, which was about a quarter of a mile down the road.

"The machine went along all right and the professor worked his way cautiously along the main street with his brake on most of the time, but as soon as he got in the outskirts of the town he turned on the full current and let her have a little ride. She was delighted and said that she had never enjoyed anything half so much in all her life. Pretty soon the machine came to a middling steep descent in the road, and the professor started to shut off the current and put on his brake. But there was something wrong about his levers. He couldn't shut off the current, and he saved his life, and when he put the brake hard on, hoping that it would stop the thing, the brake broke.

"They tell me that the tricycle went down that hill at another mile an hour—that is, after it got well under headway, you understand. Nothing that Van Wagener could do had any effect in slowing it down. The engine was working for all it was worth, and she meant to keep on working according to contract. When the tricycle struck the level ground, she slowed down to about 15 miles an hour, for the professor had given her more power than he had intended to give her. There weren't any hills or any ascents worth mentioning for the machine to climb, for Berlinopolis is about 600 feet above the lake, and the road that the professor had taken keeps descending all the way."

"When the professor found that he couldn't stop the tricycle, he was a pretty badly frightened man. He couldn't possibly throw himself off without maiming himself all up with the wheels and breaking most of his bones. Besides, he couldn't desert the widow in any such way as that. You may ask why he didn't turn the machine round and steer for home. The reason was that he couldn't possibly turn it at the speed it was running without ceasing the whole concern. The only thing he could possibly do was to keep in the middle of the road and let the machine run till the power was exhausted, which if he had made no mistake in his calculation would be less than 12 hours.

"Mrs. Dumfries enjoyed the thing at first, but after a little while she suspected that something was wrong. The professor told her that he was sorry to say that he couldn't stop the tricycle, but if she sat tight and they had nothing good luck he calculated that they wouldn't come to any great harm. The widow wasn't easily frightened. She reflected that she had on her best pair of shoes and stockings and that if there was to be an accident she would have to be the best of it. The longer the ride lasted the less chance there seemed to be of running into anything for the fear that the professor and Mrs. Dumfries did meet mostly went into the ditch on one side of the road or the other before the tricycle had a chance to run into them. The professor, being a kind hearted man and disliking profane language, was considerably troubled when he saw a horse and buggy, or maybe a pair of overalls and loaded wagon pile up in the ditch and heard the remarks that the driver made—that is, in those cases where he was in a better position to make remarks, but he couldn't stop to explain or apologize.

"It was about 9 o'clock in the morning when the tricycle started, and about 9 o'clock Mrs. Dumfries was as tired and as hungry as they make out. She called to the professor and asked him to tell her the truth about the time it would take the machine to run down. He told her that, if he hadn't made any miscalculation, she would run till about 9 o'clock that night, but that it was a bright moonlight night, and he thought everything would go well unless there should happen to be a surprise gate on the road, and it should happen to be closed. At that the widow broke down, and leaning back with her head on the professor's waistcoat fainted away. All he could do was to hold her tight with one arm, so that she couldn't slip off the machine, and to steer with the other hand. Just then he began to meet friends and acquaintances. He afterward told me that it seemed as if there was a procession of them coming up the road, and before they went off into the ditch they all recognized the professor, and he heard several of them say: "Why, that there ain't Mrs. Van Wagener! Well, I never would have thought it" or similar remarks, showing a want of confidence in the professor's motives. He tried to call out to two or three people whom he knew very well that the machine had run away with him, but they mostly misunderstood him, and said when they got back to town that Van Wagener had up and told them in so many words that he was running away with the widow.

"Night came along, and the moon came up, but the road was lined with trees, and it was fair to middling dark. Mrs. Dumfries had come to long before this, but she had lost her temper and told the professor he was a brute, and that her brother would settle with him for his outrageous conduct. Since a man hauled the tricycle and ordered it to stop, and finding that it would not stop fired three revolver shots after it without, however, doing any harm. Once the machine ran into an old woman, who was crossing the road and was either deaf or blind, but there wasn't very much of her, and the tricycle went over like a steamroller taking a fence. If it hadn't been for the excitement of the ride and the thought of what the consequences would probably be when Mrs. Van Wagener should come to know about it, the professor would probably have dropped exhausted, for he wasn't a very strong man. However, he held on well and went on 'till about 9 o'clock, just as the machine was approaching a tavern that stood alongside of the road, the current gave out, and the tricycle stopped.

"There wasn't any other house nearer than four miles, and there was the professor and Mrs. Dumfries nearly 200 miles from New Berlinopolis, and about as tired, and about as hungry and about as mad as any two people ever were. Of course they had to stop at the tavern till morning, and it took them two more days to get home. Early in the morning and partly by rail. When they did get home, the professor found that Mrs. Van Wagener had gone to her mother's, leaving word with a neighbor that she should begin proceedings for a divorce at once, and that the widow's brother had started out with his Winchester rifle, remarking that the professor's friends that they could make arrangements for the funeral at once, and that he would send the body on to them at their expense if they so desired.

"The end of it all was that I went to see the widow, and then I hunted up Mrs. Van Wagener and finally explained things so that the professor's wife came home again. On the other hand, the widow's brother allowed that he was satisfied that it was a case which didn't require any shooting. But after that you could never get the professor to listen to the word tricycle, which was a pity, for in my opinion there was a fortune in that invention of his if it had been properly put on the market. But that's the way with these scientific men. When they make a good invention, they don't know it, and when they invent something that is of no earthly use they spend their bottom dollar trying to get people to take an interest in it."—W. L. Alden in Short Stories.

To Refresh the Tired Body.
After a fatiguing tramp the tired body should be prepared for restful sleep by a careful toilet. If there is any inconvenience for a plunge, the body should be sponged off with warm water containing a few drops of ammonia—if the feet can be left in foot bath for 10 or 15 minutes, they will be all the better—rub very thoroughly with a Turkish towel, and last of all refresh the face, neck and arms by spraying with rose water, dusting visage with any favorite powder. Brush the dust off the hair and wipeout with a towel, gargle the throat with salt and water and clean the teeth, and last of all, just before lying down, take a drink of hot water or lemonade. Sweet, restful sleep should follow this regimen and prepare you to awake on the new day fit mentally and physically for any duty or pleasure that awaits you. Demore's Magazine.

Shooting stars are small cosmic bodies generally weighing only a few grammes, often much less, and composed mainly of iron and carbon. ## MR. CLEVELAND TALKS.

The Abandonment of Tariff Reform

"Means Party Purify and Party Dishonor."

Mr. Cleveland has addressed the following letter to Hon. W. L. Wilson, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee:

Executive Mansion, Washington, July 2, 1894.—Hon. W. L. Wilson—My Dear Sir: The certainty that a conference will be ordered between the two Houses of Congress for the purpose of adjusting differences on the subject of tariff legislation, makes it also certain that you will be again called on to do hard service in the cause of tariff reform.

My public life has been so closely related to the subject, I have so longed for its accomplishment and I have so often promised its realization to my fellow countrymen as a result of their trust and confidence in the Democratic party, that I hope no excuse is necessary for my earnest appeal to you that in this crisis you strenuously insist upon party honesty and good faith, and a sturdy adherence to Democratic principles. I believe that these are absolutely necessary conditions to the continuation of Democratic existence.

I can not rid myself of the feeling that this conference will present the best, if not the only, hope of true Democracy. Indications point to its action as the reliance of those who desire the genuine fruition of Democratic effort, the fulfillment of Democratic pledges, and the redemption of Democratic promises to the people. To reconcile differences in the details comprised within the fixed and well defined lines of principle will not be the sole task of the conference, but, as it seems to me, its members will have in charge the question whether Democratic principles are to be saved or abandoned.

There is no excuse for mistaking or misapprehending the feeling and the temper of the rank and file of the Democracy. They are downcast under the assertion that their party fails in ability to manage the Government and they are apprehensive that efforts to bring about tariff reform may fail, but they are much more downcast and apprehensive in their fear that Democratic principles may be surrendered.

In these circumstances they cannot do otherwise than to look with confidence to you and those who with you have patriotically and sincerely championed the cause of tariff reform within the Democratic lines and guided the Democratic principles.

Every true Democrat and every able tariff reformer knows that this bill, in its present form, and as it will be submitted to the conference, falls far short of the consummation for which we have long labored, for which we have suffered defeat without discouragement; which in its anticipation gave us a rallying cry in our day of triumph, and which in its promise of accomplishment is so interwoven with Democratic pledges and Democratic success that our abandonment of the cause or the principles upon which it rests means party perdition and party dishonor.

One topic will be submitted to the conference which embodies Democratic principle so directly that it cannot be compromised. We have in our platform and in every way possible declared in favor of the free importation of raw material. We have again and again promised that this should be accorded to our people and to our manufacturers as soon as the Democratic party was invested with the power to determine the tariff policy of the country.

The party now has that power. We are as certain to-day as we have ever been of the great benefit that would accrue to the country from the inauguration of this policy, and nothing has occurred to release us from our obligations to secure this advantage to our people. It must be admitted that no tariff measure can accord with Democratic principles and promises, or bear a genuine Democratic badge, that does not provide for free raw material.

In these circumstances it may well excite our wonder that Democrats are willing to depart from this, the most distinctive of all tariff principles, and that the loudest and absurdity of such a proposed departure should be emphasized by the suggestion that the wool of the farmer be put on the free list and protection of tariff taxation be placed around the iron ore and coal of corporations and capitalists. How can we face the people after indulging in such outrageous discriminations and violations of principles?

It is quite apparent that this question of free raw material does not admit of adjustment on any middle ground, since their subject to any rate of tariff taxation, great or small is alike violative of Democratic principle and Democratic good faith.

I hope that you will not consider it intrusive if I say something in relation to another subject which can hardly fail to be troublesome to the conference. I refer to the adjustment of tariff taxation on sugar. Under our party platform and in accordance with our declared party purposes, sugar is a legitimate and logical article of revenue taxation.

Unfortunately, however, incidents have accompanied certain stages of the legislation which will be submitted to the conference that have aroused in connection with this subject a natural Democratic animosity, to the methods and manipulations of trusts and combinations. I confess to sharing in this feeling, and yet it seems to me we ought, if possible, to sufficiently free ourselves from prejudice to enable us to coolly weigh the considerations which, in formulating tariff legislation, ought to guide our treatment of sugar as a taxable article.

While no tenderness should be entertained for trusts and while I am decidedly opposed to granting them, under the guise of tariff taxation, any opportunity to further their peculiar methods, I suggest that we ought not to be driven away from the Democratic principle and policy which lead to the taxation of sugar by the tax (quite likely exaggerated) in carrying out this principle, we may indolently and inordinately encourage a combine of sugar-refining interests.

I know that in present conditions this is a delicate subject, and I appreciate the depth and strength of the feeling which its treatment has aroused. I do not believe we should do evil that good may come, but it seems to me that we should not forget that our aim is the completion of a tariff bill, and that in taxing sugar for protection or purposes and within reasonable bounds, whatever else may be said of our action, we are in no danger of running counter to Democratic principles.

With all there is at stake there must be in the treatment of this article some ground upon which we are willing to stand, where toleration and conciliation may be allowed to solve the problem, without demanding the entire surrender of fixed and conscientious convictions.

I ought not to prolong this letter. If what I have written is unwelcome, I beg you to believe in my good intentions. In the conclusion of the conference touching the numerous items which will be considered, the people are not afraid that their interests will be neglected. They know that the general result, so far as they may be concerned, is to place home necessities and comforts more easily within their reach and to insure the better and surer compensation to those who toil.

We all know that a tariff law covering all the varied interests and conditions of a country as vast as ours must of necessity be largely the result of honorable adjustment and compromise. I expect very few of us can say when our measure is perfected that all of its features are entirely as we would prefer. You know how much I deprecated the incorporation in the proposed bill of the income tax feature. In matters of this kind, however, which do not violate a fixed and recognized Democratic doctrine, we are willing to defer to the judgment of our Democratic brethren.

This is more palpably apparent when we realize that the business of our country timely stands and watches for the result of our efforts to perfect tariff legislation, that a quick and certain return of prosperity waits upon a wise adjustment, and a conflicting people still trust in our hands their prosperity and well being.

The Democracy of the land pleads most earnestly for the speedy completion of the tariff legislation which their representatives have undertaken; but they demand not less earnestly that no stress of necessity shall tempt those they trust to the abandonment of Democratic principle. Yours very truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

A wonderful event.
In such a state of civilization as ours, where merit is sure to be acknowledged, it is a wonder the factory of Dr. Fenner is worked to its fullest capacity to supply the medicines that are called, after such acknowledgements as the following come to be known: Wm. Farquay, Stevens Station, Ind., writes: "Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure has cured a man here with kidney and bladder disease whom the best physicians had given up. He is now well and sound. It is regarded here as a most wonderful event. His medicines are all good and give great satisfaction." Equally certain in female diseases, rheumatism, blood diseases, headaches, dropsy, heart disease, etc. Guaranteed to satisfy or money refunded. Take home a bottle to-day.

At San Francisco Theodore Fox has commenced suit against John W. Mackay, Senator John P. Jones, C. K. Fish, G. R. Fox alleges that between four and five million dollars have been wrongfully appropriated by the defendants.

Bradstreet's weekly review of trade shows that the disappearance of the strike, the revival of regular freight schedules and the customary movement of produce and merchandise have done much to restore something like the normal volume of commerce. Several favorable reports are embraced in the review, principal among them being that from St. Louis. Some gain in the volume of trade is reported also by Louisville and Cincinnati.

Garfield Wilkinson, a 14-year-old boy living 13 miles south of Wichita, Kansas, was shot and instantly killed by his brother, Willie, a boy of 11. Garfield had been reading about the bullet-proof shields recently tested in Germany. He concluded to make one like them, and having completed it he put it on and asked his brother to fire a shot at him. The little brother did so, the bullet penetrating the shield and piercing the boy's heart. The shield was made out of coffee sacks and filled with scraps of old barbed wire and wool. The accident drove the mother of the boys insane.

The mile that Fantasy trotted at Saginaw shows that she is very apt to step close to the record this season. It takes something of a trotter to march the last half of a mile in 1:02.

Lord Clinton is quite a race horse this season. He won the free-for-all trot at Detroit in straight heats, beating such cracks as Pizley, Aliz, Pamlico, Walter E., etc. The best time was 2:09.

Dandy Jim 2:15, by Young Jim, is a very swift horse, but a confirmed ringer. Every time he scores he wants to go to the quarter pole, and on that account it is an easy matter for a few teamsters to put their heads together and pump him out before he gets the wheel.

Bluegrass has dried up astonishingly in ten days past.

Most of the fat export cattle have been bought at 45 cents and shipped.

Oats is one of the very heaviest crops ever raised. It is being harvested now.

Hemp looks well and a fair yield is now assured. The area is very small. Market current $5 and firm.

Timothy very light and much rendered worthless by white blossom. Light crop of clover, the late freeze killed more than half.

The prospect in this section for a large corn crop was never more promising than at present. The earliest corn has begun to tassel and shoot.

Fat hogs at 51 cents. Lamb trade still dull. Horse and mule trade duller than ever known in the history of the country.—Lexington Gazette.

Tobacco in this locality and throughout the bluegrass counties is doing finely. Reports from other counties though are not encouraging by reason of drought.

Wheat is being thrashed and delivered. Most of the farmers taking the market current 50 to 51 cents delivered here. Harvest of one sale to a miller here at 51 1/2 cents.
